BUS SERVICES

Problems with the early morning bus from Richmond to Gunnerside and return have overshawdowed the additional Bus Services for Swaledale and Arkengarthdale following the recent review of public transport by North Yorkshire County Council. All such services in the two Dales need to be subsidised.

Extra services include a daily mid morning Richmond to Keld service, a late bus to Gunnerside from Richmond on Fridays and a Richmond-Marske-Marrick-Reeth-Langthwaite-Whaw service on Saturdays. The popular Tuesday Hawes and Friday Leyburn market day service have been retained. Most services are operated by Arriva (United) but the Hawes-Keld connection is now operated by Braithwaites of Sedburgh.

Whilst most of the new services have been well received there has been a lot of confusion and problems with the early morning Richmond Gunnerside (Route 202) service which is now operated as a schools contract by Abbotts of Leeming. This service should still be running as a service bus for fare paying passengers stopping and collecting in Richmond Market Place. The problems have been raised with Abbotts, the County Council and with our local County Councillor but remain unresolved at the time of going to press. It is understood that Arriva will be operating this service during school holidays. The fundamental problem is that the "school" bus on a morning is an essential service bus and should never be considered just as a "school" service. The knock on problem is the 1550 afternoon service from Richmond and return.

Any complaints about the services should be directed to Richard Owens, Passenger Transport Officer, NYCC, County Hall, Northallerton.

Another problem is with the "Explorer" tickets, great value to spend a day on the buses, but with so many different operators they are apparently no longer practical. Watch this space!! A full timetable has been prepared and is published inside the back cover. Sorry but we have no details of any Sunday Services, yet.

PARISH COUNCIL ELECTIONS

Thursday 6th May is Polling Day for local elections. Only Melbecks and Marrick are holding elections for Parish Councils.

Candidates for Melbecks are:

Raymond Alderson; Harry Beswick; James Rutter Calvert; Robert Neil Clarkson; George Kenneth Hird and Ann Spensley.

Candidates for Marrick are:

John Bird; David Philip Brown; Barrie Ernest Braithwaite; Ian Anthony Donald Law; Hillary Susan Richardson; Keith Oliver Stones and John Robert Wilkinson.

Polling Stations are at Gunnerside Village Hall, Low Row & Feetham Institute and Marrick Institute respectively and are open from 8am to 9pm.

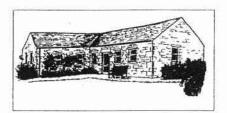

Elections are not required for Arkengarthdale, Grinton, Muker, and Reeth.

The nominated and correctly elected members for those Parish Councils are: Arkengarthdale: Clark Stones, Stephen Stubbs, Andrew Stones, Angela Whitworth and Robert Gale. Grinton: Harold Brown, Norman Harker, Geraldine Coates, Brian Sunter and Michael Smalley. Muker: Ernest Whitehead; John Kilburn; John Porter; John Reynoldson and Raymond Calvert Reeth, Fremington and Healaugh: Martin Bearpark, Philip Bastow, Peter Brant, David Hutchinson and James Kendall.

James Kendall and Raymond Alderson have both been returned un opposed as members for Richmondshire District Council.

Millennium

Ideas for celebrating the Millennium in Reeth include a Boundary Walk for the Spring of 2000 and to hold a Bartle Fair - last held in August 1951. The programme for the Bartle Fair included, a fancy dress procession, children's sports, a community tea and concert in the Memorial Hall. It is hoped that photographs of that Bartle Fair could be exhibited in the forthcoming "Swaledale - Now & Then" exhibition in the Memorial Hall but the "official album" was borrowed and has never been returned.

It's a Doc's Life

A column with a medical slant

A few patients (mainly men!) have asked me about Viagra. Rationing has gone on behind the scenes in the Health Service for years. Viagra has brought this debate into the public arena. The paradox is that GP's are obliged to prescribe any drug they feel that their patient needs. However guidelines from the DoH forbid this and dictate that it is only for a small group of patients with defined illnesses (i.e. men who have multiple sclerosis or diabetes). This is discrimination, but by not prescribing I could be in breach of my contract. However any prescription given to a patient without the defined criteria will be carefully scrutinised by the Health Authority. Viagra costs £5 per tablet. The current therapies we use for impotence are Muse and Caverject, which cost £9.95 and £18.50 respectively. Therefore by prescribing Viagra I could save the Health Service money, but no, that is too simple. The only way to get Viagra is to be referred as an outpatient to the hospital at a cost of hundreds of pounds. Well done, Frank Dobson and the DoH, a triumph for common sense. Meanwhile Viagra can be bought over the Internet from http://KwikMed.com/viagra/104764/ although I strongly advise only taking it under medical supervision.

Dr. Paul Bond, The Surgery.

Muker to Oxnop & Crackpotside Part One

You Leave Muker in high hopes of seeing Rash. Yes, there it is on your map and you follow the track over Routin Gill. But do you ever see Rash? Well, you might as well have been in Nowhereville -- you have seen it! Rash is one of Swaledale's hamlets, like Birkdale and Kearton -- its houses so well scattered that it's there and yet it isn't....

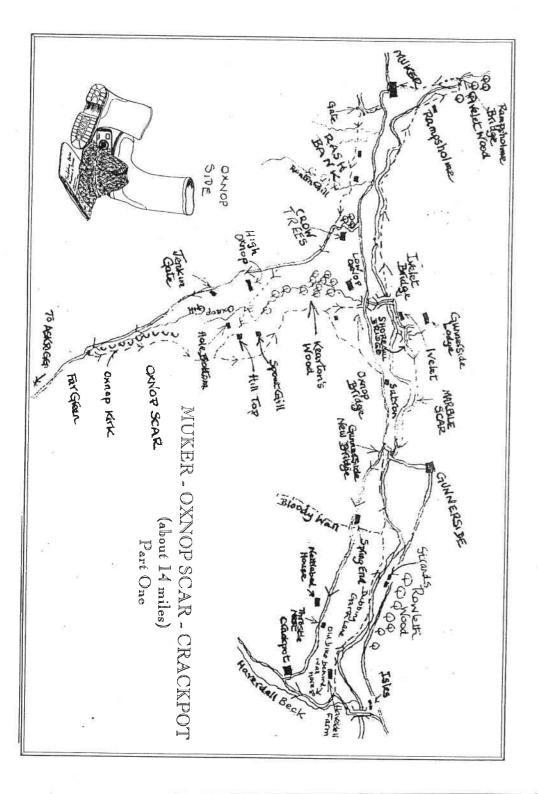

Hereabouts you are in a country of great surprises -- Kearton's Wood above unseen waterfalls, roaring and thundering far below, the hidden Oxnop Kirk, Oxnop Bridge with its aeroplane, and from the shelf-of Crackpotside a vision of Swaledale so narrow that Rowleth Wood on the other side seems almost within shouting distance.

So put on your jolly old daletrotters and come along with me. The one sure thing about Swaledale is that our walking day does not have to down bright and clear -- it can be bucketing rain, but no matter, for, always remember -- Swaledale rain is good for the complexion, and all the farmers are applecheeked. (You do believe me, don't you?) Anyway, set your sights for Rash Bank and let us be trotting along the walled Accommodation Lane. Push through a handgate at the foot of the Bank and you will suddenly find yourself on the narrow track we have just mentioned.

In the intervals of rest and catching your breath between hopping over one beck after another as they rush down the steep-sided Rash Bank, you will pass Rash Grange, one of the oldest houses in the Dale (1685), occupied by the Kilburn family for many years until they moved to Queens in Muker. Next comes Rash View and then Rash Cottage. Rash Cottage, with an elevated view, looks out over Gun Ing Lane below, and also the heavy wooded Routin Gill. You would call this a dashed impressive coign of vantage, what?

From here the track climbs steeply until you emerge, slightly limp but still chirpy, onto the Oxnop Gill road at last. Crow Tree Farm (Hunter) is just below us, together with its first line of defence, the Crow Trees. They are sycamores, grouped close together to form an almost impregnable wind break against the storm-force westerlies that roar and shriek across from time to time.

The road at this point is bordered by exceptionally interesting and beautiful wild flowers and fruits, as, for instance, ragged robin, 'a declining species', says the Flora Britannica, 1996, p.100-1, and 'widespread and common' says the Collins Book of Wild Flowers, 1974, p.32. So what are, you to believe, I ask you. Also present are the pyramidal orchids, sloes, bilberries, early purple orchids and brambles -- and here perhaps I should pass on the stern warning always given by Norland-trained nannies to their young charges: "Never pick brambles below dog-leg lifting height".! Anyway, all are here in their due season. Grigson's 'Englishman's Flora', 1975, p.281, describing bilberries, simply says of them, "good in tarts" -- ho! ho! and R. Mabey's Flora Britannica, p.444, records that "early purple orchids smell wonderful when first opened, like lily of the valley -- but when they go over they reek of tom cat." Lastly, mention must be made of the dark red betony. (flo. Jun-Aug). Though common, it is very special. In Ancient Egypt it was wrapped round the body to ward off evil dreams and spirits with its magic power. In mediaeval times there was a prayer to betony: "O Betony, you who were discovered first by Aesculapius, hear my prayer...." In the the Herbarium of Apuleius Platonicus (c. 1400) it was shown as a cure for 47 diseases, with magic power against the elf-sickness (!) Furthermore, with its Latin name of Betonicus it was grown in all the monasteries and physic gardens of Europe. It is applied externally as a poultice to heal wounds and bruises. (See 'Englishman's Flora', Grigson, p.346, and 'Natural Pharmacy', 1992, p.126).

Kearton's Wood can be seen below the ban at the top of the hill, named after the famous George Kearton who lived at Oxnop Hall until he was 124 years old and was a boxer of renown in his day, the early 19th century, But... 124? And what about Henry Jenkins of Bolton-on-Swale, who died in 1670 and lived "to the amazing age of 169", in the words of a memorial inscription to him, put up in 1743 in the church there. (It has a wonderful flourish to it, typical of the period: "Blush not, marble, to rescue from oblivion the memory of"... etc). OK. Fine. Both splendid fellows. But there are no records, and only their word for the date of birth, what? Anyway, George K. was famous on other counts.

The Oxnop country looks, and is, ancient. Tiny fields, irregular stone walls, the houses all with a history, like High Oxnop, near the road and looking as if it had grown out of the ground. Then there is Jenkin Gate, a cow-barn next to a cattle-grid these days, but ideally placed for a roadside inn, and that is exactly what it used to be in times gone by. Remember that this road up the Oxnop Gill was once a main packhorse route to the market towns of the south, from Askrigg downwards, so Jenkin Gate no doubt flourished as an inn, though not much room for accommodation.

Furthermore, Jenkin Gate catered for the local miners, working not only the busy smelt mill beside the Foss Gill high up on Oxnop Side but also at the Spout Gill Mines over on the east side. "Spout Gill needed a lot of water for hushing (i.e. washing the ore)", wrote Dr Arthur Raistrick in his 'Smelt Mills of Swaledale', 1975, p.32, "and water had to be got from Oxnop Moor on the west by means of a sluice or launder (aqueduct) over Oxnop Gill beck, carrying the water down Spout Gill. The miners who did the construction work were given a $10 bonus, which they promptly spent at Jenkin Gate". (Of course, of course).

As we near the top of Oxnop Gill we cannot help noticing Hill Top, a house in a super-splendid situation, well named indeed. There it stands up, cock of the roost, and nothing anywhere near to argue with it. It was a stronghold of the Guy family for many years, and one of them, Bob, once told me he was born there -- "Nah!" he said. "Not born, quarried!" (He is the famous roofer, living in Reeth -- and if you don't know what a roofer is I'm sorry for you). Notice a rather pretty little house near Hill Top, at the foot of a steep bank on the west side. It is called Hole Bottom, and the two houses, one high up and the other low down, make an unusually interesting pair.

So here we are, at the top of the Gill and facing Oxnop Scar, one of the few places in Swaledale where you could ever do any serious rock-climbing or abseiling, etc. Look at your 6-inch map you will notice 'Oxnop Kirk' on the face of the scar. Can this perhaps be a relic of one of those Nonconformist hide-outs of late 17th century date, of which the best-known is of course 'Swinnergill Kirk' northwards from Muker? This one would have been even bleaker and more remote than the Swinnergill Kirk, and one can't help admiring the tenacity of purpose that kept these people to their faith until the Act of Toleration came to their rescue, as it were, in 1690, and they could say goodbye to these little 'Kirks' hidden all over the Yorkshire Dales.

Very good! Here we discover a farm track leading back along the edge of the Scar down to Losy Hill and Satron. It has five gates across it. Utterly iniquitous, I tell you, and if I'm motoring I always like to have an unsuspecting passenger with me who won't know about the gates and can be politely asked to work his or her passage and do the donkey-work of getting in and out of the car to open and shut them! The amazing views on the way down, though, are more than sufficient reward. There, far off on the northern side of the Dale, is High Kisdon Scar, and above them the heathery distances of Ivelet and Gunnerside Moors.

All this time the farm track is taking us down Oxnop Gill in a zig-zag sort of way, and the Oxnop Beck far down in the woodland depths of the Gill is beginning to grumble more and more loudly. It finishes up as a thundering great waterfall, hidden in darkness beneath the spreading trees. Presently we reach a large barn known as Puddingsteads (good name, that!) and plunge steeply down on a footpath which brings us into sight of Gunnerside Lodge afar off, and then Ivelet, although the two bridges there, Ivelet and Shoregill Beck, are at this point screened by trees.

But here, on our left, is Low Oxnop (J. Porter), 'built by John & Elizabeth Alderson in 1685, it displays a splendid range of mullioned and transomed windows unmatched by any other house in Swaledale'. (Fieldhouse & Jennings, 'History of Swaledale', 1978. p.244). Worth going a long way round Oxnop Gill to see and admire, I must say.

Crossing the main road at the bottom we must not miss Oxnop Bridge. The name was blocked out early in the last war, like that of Healaugh Bridge, to prevent it being identified by enemy parachutists, etc. What makes Oxnop Bridge different and unique, though, is that you will see, on the third coping-stone from the left on the north side, the incised outline of a wartime aircraft, very competent, by someone who knew his job -- though whether it represents a Spitfire, Hurricane, Defiant or Messerschmitt I would not hazard a guess...

The short road down to Ivelet Bridge is where the toothwort grows. 'One of the most unearthly-looking of our native species, a ghostly parasite entirely lacking in chlorophyll, growing on the roots of trees'. (Flora Britannica, 1996, p.336). 'Not a common plant. Its local name is Corpse Flower'. (Englishman's Flora, 1975, p.334).

Well, toothwort is not the only corpse flower. We have one in our garden. It is the white campion. 'A sinister plant, its local name is 'mother-dee' or 'mother-die', because picking the flowers brought death to your mother. Moths flutter from white flower to flower during the night and do the business of pollination. It is a handsome plant, growing to a height of 8 feet or so, and is of ancient origin, remains of it having been found on neolithic and Bronze Age sites'. (Englishman's Flora, p.92).

Mark Williams(son) came to grief on the hump-back top of Ivelet Bridge while riding his motor-bike fairly fast (they all do it, don't they!) He was suddenly confronted by a stone wall on the far side of the bridge, braked hard, left the saddle and nose-dived into deep mud beyond the wall!

At the north-east corner of this bridge lies the only known coffin stone on the Swaledale Corpse Way, on which the coffin was placed while the beaters had a rest interval on their way down to the burial service at Grinton Church. (The 12th century Grinton Church was the only church in Swaledale for 400 years until Muker Church was opened in 1580).

HALFWAY POINT

We have now covered about 5 miles and have looked at many things of interest. If you like you may now turn homeward at this point by strolling along the delectable riverside track back to Muker, with my thanks ringing in your ears and my pats on back (?) for having come this far and for having been such good company. You will have clocked up a very respectable 7 miles of high quality rambling by the time you get back -- something worth chattering about as time goes by

Parish News & Views

St. Mary's Church - Muker

On Sunday, 9th May at 4pm there will be a Songs of Praise with Muker Silver Band to give thanks for a successful Lambing season. The Sunday School will join in the special service. All families and visitors are welcome.

St. Mary's Church Coffee Morning

A Coffee Morning, Bring and Buy Stall and Cake Stall in aid of Church funds will be held in Muker Literary Institute on Bank Holiday Monday, 3rd May between 10 am and 12 noon.

Muker Ladies Guild

The Guild together with Luncheon Club members had a joint and very enjoyable trip to see the 'King & I' at the Darlington Civic. This was a wonderful show and our less mobile members particularly appreciated the facilities at the Civic. Afternoon tea and shopping at the local Morrison's store completed a splendid trip out. The next Guild meeting will be on Thursday, 6th May at 7 pm in Muker Public Hall when Mr Neil Gardiner will give a talk and show slides on some of the more interesting aspects of our natural world.

Muker Luncheon Club

The 29th April luncheon in Muker Public Hall was the fourth anniversary of the Club. At the first Club held in April 1995 fifteen people launched what has become a most successful and enjoyable gathering of people. Last Thursday, forty-four people enjoyed an excellent meal provided as usual by the Farmers Arms, Muker. This is nearly three times the number of people who originally founded the Club. After the meal members usually stay on to play Indoor Carpet Bowls, dominoes and table pastimes. Occasional speakers and entertainers are invited during the year. Together with members from other Clubs joint coach outings and theatre visits are arranged. These have proved so popular that regular outings are now in the programme and the next outing will be on Thursday, 8th July when there is an opportunity to visit Preston Park Museum, Butterfly World and enjoy a cruise up the River Tees on the Teesside Princess. Booking Forms and Itinerary can be found in this month's (May's) menus.

The Distinguished DUKES - Ukulele players extraordinaire will be appearing in Muker Public Hall on Bank Holiday Monday, 31st May in aid of the Sick Children's Unit at St. James Hospital, Leeds -TV's Jimmy's. Tickets are now on sale at Muker and Reeth Post Offices at £3, children and Senior citizens £1.50. May 31st is also Duck Race Day in Muker and the Dukes leader, Mr. Len Smith, has promised to lead his group to entertain the crowds with street Busking. Donations in aid of Jimmys would be welcomed. If you liked to hear George Formby this group will bring back memories. This is also the middle weekend of the Swaledale Festival fortnight. Look out for other concerts in the programme. Muker Silver Band concert in Muker Public Hall on Wednesday June 9th.

Parish & General News round up

REETH welcomes trial Luncheon - Luncheon Club good news - Arrangements have been made to hold a Trial Luncheon in Reeth Memorial Hall on Wednesday, 12th May. Menus are available from Reeth Post Office and the Bottom Shop. It is intended that the proposed new Club will serve the Reeth/Fremington/Grinton area. Naturally this Club is open to anyone eligible to attend, as long as they live in Arkengarthdale or Swaledale. Initially an Introductory Coffee Morning was held in the Memorial Hall on Friday 16th April as part of the Feasibility Study, and though the day was snowy and cold, twenty five people completed or forwarded questionnaires wanting a luncheon club. This proved there was sufficient interest to support a trial meal. A number of people have volunteered to help at the Club but other volunteers to form a team and help on a rota basis are needed. If you are able and willing to help please contact the Secretary, Tel. 886307. If you wish to form or starting a club to serve your village/area please seek the support of the Association. Parish & District Councillors -

Many Parish and District councillor's have been elected unopposed and only in some areas is there an election. It will be interesting to see new faces and we wait to find out if there will be any noticeable change in the actions or opinions of particular Parishes. Polling Day is May 6th. If you have a chance to vote please use it.

Millennium Funding

Most Parishes are planning some form of celebration or positive memorial to the coming millennium. Thanks to the financial support of Richmondshire District Council via grants to local Parish Councils and other kind agencies many historic and long lasting projects are in hand. These range from stone cairns, bandstands to computer generated and stored local history and personnel archives which encourage input by the residents of each parish. Many of the events and projects will be enjoyed and attended by most people in the various parishes. Please give generously to support these projects and in particular please recognise the amount of time and effort the small organising committees are putting in on your behalf. If you feel able to help why not volunteer.

Computer and Information Technology Training -

Plans are being formulated to provide BASIC and ADVANCED courses in the use of computers throughout the two dales. Do you have an interest in learning either for business or just for fun how to use a computer, using e-mail, accessing the internet and browsing the Web. Senior citizens why not learn about e-mail etc. so that you can keep in touch with family or friends in other parts of the country or world. To assist in the planning and organisation and to give some idea of the numbers likely to require such training please write giving name and address, and type of training required to CITTAS, c/o pmb. Reeth Gazette, Reeth Post Office. Reeth.

Radon in the home-How dangerous is it?

Many people in the Dales have received booklets from the Department of the Environment warning of the dangers of domestic radon and some have responded to the invitation to have their houses tested for radon levels because they are concerned by the suggestion that this gas may be causing lung cancer in themselves and their children. Some enquiring minds have asked whether there is any evidence that residents of the Northern Dales have a higher than average incidence of lung cancer. When this question was put to the National Radiological Protection Board (NRPB) which advises the Department of the Environment on such matters, the latter has responded that there is no regional epidemiological evidence to suggest this. NRPB's advice to the Department of the Environment is in fact based on some relatively old research on mine workers subjected to much higher concentrations of radon than are ever likely to be experienced by people in their homes in the Yorkshire Dales. Radon is is found in minute quantities in all rocks so that everyone breathes in small amounts of it every day. The average national background concentration in the atmosphere is 20 Bequerels per cubic meter (Bq/m³). The important question is then at what concentration does radon become dangerous and how dangerous is it?

NRPB has advised the government that the danger level is 200 Bq/m³. This is an arbitrary figure based on the assumption that the risk of cancer increases linearly with the concentration of radon in the atmosphere from background level. However, international research has shown that although this appears to be the case in Stockholm, Missouri and New Jersey, it is not universally true. For example, in Winnipeg, Canada and Shenyang, China there is evidence that up to 400 Bq/m³, the incidence of lung cancer is actually reduced. A recent very comprehensive study of lung cancer incidence in 1601 counties across the USA has confirmed that the risk does indeed decrease with increase in radon concentration up to at least 260 Bg/m³ and it is suggested that this is due to an increase in the body's defence mechanism. It seems highly likely that factors other than radon account for the large discrepancies that have been observed in the more limited surveys. Typical 'confounding' factors are environmental pollution which is particularly severe in mines due to dangerous dusts. In centres of high population density such as New Jersey and Stockholm, there is also a relatively high concentration of cancer-causing particles due to vehicle exhausts. NRPB admits that smoking is a much more serious lung cancer hazard than radon. Smoking 15 cigarettes a day increases the risk of cancer from radon by a factor of ten compared with non-smokers. There is also strong evidence that a balanced diet of fruits and vegetables substantially reduces the risk of lung cancer.

So what should the Dales resident conclude from this. Firstly, it is clear that even in the worst case scenario assumed by NRPB, radon is a negligible cause of lung cancer when compared with smoking. If you are a smoker then the obvious solution is to stop. If you are not a smoker and have a healthy diet then radon levels in the region of 400 Bq/m³ might, according to NRPB, cause a very small increased risk (~15%) of lung cancer. However, other evidence suggests that the risk of lung cancer actually decreases up to this level. If your house has a radon concentration averaged over a year at 700 Bq/m³ or above then your risk may be doubled if you are a non-smoker or increased twenty-fold if you also smoke. Each individual then has to decide on the basis of his or her own life-style whether the radon risk is significant compared with other environmental factors.

25 years of SWALEDALE WOOLLENS

The tradition of hand knitting in Swaledale can be traced back over four hundred years to the time when lead miners and their families developed the craft to supplement their meagre income. When Queen Elizabeth I set the fashion for stockings nearly every family in the Dalemen, women, and children - became stocking knitters. By the middle of the 18th century an estimated 18,000 pairs were produced annually in Swaledale and the adjoining Dales. However, by the end of the last century the industry began to decline.

In the early 1970's, again with the economy of Swaledale at a low ebb thoughts again were turned to reviving the local knitting trade. There were still some descendants of the early knitters living in the Dale and the art of knitting had survived with them. So in 1974, after much research, David Morris and his wife Grisel founded Swaledale Woollens based firmly in Muker. Using mainly Swaledale wool and local knitters the business quickly grew and gained an international reputation. The story is one of success. Swaledale Woollens have been worn on Antarctic expeditions and by members of the Royal Family

Today Swaledale Woollens has a lovely little shop in the heart of Muker with a variety of woollen products, mostly locally produced using a team of knitters working at home, a full time manager and five part time staff. Items are despatched all over the country and the world using the local post office. It could be stated that the success of Swaledale Woollens is because it uses local materials, employs local people and supports local services. Something unique in the modern business world.

Why travel to the towns to support the big shops when you have the best right here on your own doorstep? Congratulations on your first 25 years and here's to the next. Well done and keep on knitting. Visit their Web Site: www.yorkshirenet.co.uk/swaledalewoollens

"THE Yorkshire DALES

a view from the MILLENNIUM

"This stunning and original new book has been specially commissioned to celebrate the new millennium and is essential reading for all those with a love of the Yorkshire Dales"

Complied by two of the area's leading authors, David Joy and Colin Speakman, the book has been produced in association with the Yorkshire Dales Millennium Trust and features a foreword from the Trust's patron HRH The Prince of Wales. The book not only features on the history and beauty of the Dales but also looks forward to the future by ending with the winning entries from an art and poetry competition run by the Trust for Dales schoolchildren.

One of the poems is by Sophie Mair of Healaugh.

THE BRIDGE

The bridge has stood two hundred years
With moss protruding from every crack and stone

Beneath, the stream dawdies over pebbles peacefully,

The spring sunshine reflecting on the ripples
Overhanging trees coming into bud
Cast shadows over the water's edge
Pussywillow, catkins bursting into bloom,
Sycamore, ash and chestnut line the banks
Horse and cart, cattle, motor cars
The bridge has seen them all.
But made only for the trudging feet of miners
The only life to cross its lonely path today
Is the occasional sheep and armies of advancing grass,
For it cannot hold the weight

For it cannot hold the weight
Of even one man now

The book is due to be published in the autumn, priced £25.

Books for Schools

With your correspondent D N William (April issue) I agree that the apparent discrepancy between the Chancellor's Budget statement and the Department of Education's allocation of funds for school books is to be regretted and that, nevertheless, the distribution between small and large schools is indeed thoroughly fair.

Doubtless he rejoices with me and other readers that the raising of national educational standard is a priority of the government, that already 100,00 children are benefiting from smaller class size, that nursery education is being extended to all four year olds, that an extra £19 billion is being invested in education over the next three years and that the Budget allocation for books is additional to that sum

as the 20th Century draws to a close we reproducing entries from the "Bulmers History and Directory of North Yorkshire, 1890" to compare of the two Dales as they were recorded at the end of the 19th Century and as they are at the end of this Century

MARRICK PARISH.

Wapentake and Petty Sessional Division of West Gilling—Electoral Division and Poor Law Union of Reeth—County Court District of Richmond—Rural Deanery of Richmond West—Archdeaconry of Richmond—Diocese of York.

This parish is situated on the north bank of the Swale, between the parishes of Marske and Grinton, and extends northward to that of Kirkby Ravensworth. Its total area, according to the Ordnance Survey, is 6,206 acres, a considerable portion of which is high moorland. Near the river the surface is varied and picturesque. The whole parish is comprised in one township, the rateable value of which is £3,526, and the population 307. The landowners are Col. Francis Morley (lord of the manor), Rev. E. C. Ince, heirs of D. F. Alderson and of John Blenkiron, Mr. Leonard Spensley Mason, Mr. John Sherlock, Mr. Matthew Whitelock, Dr. Howell Williams, Miss E. Hind, Miss Atkinson, and George T. Gilpin-Brown, Esq.

The name of this place was written by the scribes of Domesday Book Marige and Marrig, and is said, by the author of "Yorkshire Past and Present," to signify marshes, but Clarkson, the historian of Richmond, supposes the name "to be derived from Mary, and Wich, habitatio, the habitation of Mary, now corrupted into Marrick."

At the time of the Conquest the manor was held by Gospatrick, and in the Survey it was taxed for five carucates, and there were in it two ploughs, but it was then waste. To whom it was then granted does not appear, but some time after it was in the possession of the Askes, and about the year 1535 it passed in marriage with Ann, daughter and co-heiress of Roger de Aske, to Sir Ralph Bulmer, Knight. The issue of this marriage was a daughter and heiress, Dorothy, who married John Sayer, Esq., of Worsall, and about 1660 the estate was again carried by marriage to the Bulmers. From this family it was purchased by Charles Powlett, Marquis of Winchester, afterwards Duke of Bolton, whose descendant sold it in 1817, to Josias Morley, Esq., of Beamsley Hall, and it is now the property of that gentleman's grandson.

Marrick Abbey.—An abbey for Benedictine nuns was founded here in the reign of Stephen, by Roger de Aske, and dedicated to the Blessed Virgin. The founder endowed it with the church of St. Andrew, in Marrick, one carucate of land, tithes of his mill, multure of corn there, and he also gave the sisterhood liberty to grind their corn without paying multure. It was also enriched by grants and privileges from his successors and other benefactors. Ralph, son of Ralph, Lord of Moulton, gave to it, in 1171, the Hospital of Reycross, on Stanemoor, the chaplain of which received from the nuns a yearly pension of £4 13s. 4d. At the Dissolution the sisterhood consisted of 17 nuns, whose gross income was £64 Ss. 9d.

The site was granted, in 1540, to John Uvedale. Subsequently it came into the possession of the Brackenburys, and, in 1592, it passed by deed of feoffment from John Brackenbury, Esq., to Timothy Hutton, Esq. (afterwards knighted), and his heirs. The abbey lands and the tithes of Marrick were sold by his son Matthew, in 1633, for £3,280, to the Blackburn family, from whom they passed to the Bulmers, Pigotts, and various other persons.

The abbey, of which a few ruined walls still remain, stands by the side of the Swale, about a mile S.W. of the village of Marrick, and is approached from the latter place by a flight of 375 irregular stone steps, leading down the wooded declivity. On the opposite side of the river are the ruins of Ellerton Abbey, and between the two there was, according to tradition, a subterranean passage.

The Church (St. Andrew) occupies a portion of the site, and seems also to have served for the conventual chapel as well as the parish church. The old structure having become much dilapidated, the greater part of it was taken down in the early part of this century, and the present small church built on its site, mixed with parts of the old fabric. It consists of a nave, with north aisle, chancel, and the ancient tower. In the latter are three bells, one of which dates from old Catholic times, and bears the invocation in Latin, "St. Peter, Pray for us." The chancel was restored and improved in 1885, at the expense of the impropriator. A few ancient tombstones remain. On the chancel floor, cut in relief, are the arms and sword of Sir Roger de Aske; and near the door are the places from which some vandal hand has torn the funeral brasses of the founder and his wife. In the nave is a slab, which a Latin inscription, in Old English characters, tells us covers the remains of Isabella, one of the nuns of the priory, and sister of Thomas de Pudsay, of Barforth; and on another, forming part of the step of the altar rail, are an incised cross, with chalice, book, a square object charged with a quartrefoil, and another object, apparently a pax. Against the wall is a tablet to the memory of Mr. Thomas Fawcett, of Oxque, in this parish, who died in 1783. He was, the inscription tells us, "a celebrated cultivator of bees, for which he received many testimonies from the Society in London for the encouragement of Arts and Sciences."

The living is a vicarage worth £100 a year, in the gift of Colonel Morley, and incumbency of the Rev. John Wharton Mason, B.A., who was presented in 1846. The vicarage house is situated about 1½ miles east of the church, and commands good views of the Swale and its valley. It is surrounded by 26 acres of glebe land, which is farmed by the vicar. The tithes have been commuted, their value for the year 1888 was £16 10s.

The village of Marrick is distant about one mile N.E. of the church, and seven miles S.W. of Richmond. The Catholics and Wesleyans have each chapels here; that belonging to the former body was opened in 1858, and that to the latter was rebuilt in 1878.

The School Board for the United District of Marrick was formed about 13 years ago, and two commodious schools have been erected at Marrick and Hurst. The former was built in 1878, at a cost of £700, and will accommodate 40 children; the latter, about two years later, at a cost of £1,150, contains accommodation for 78. The district under the jurisdiction of the Board includes the township of New Forest, in the adjoining parish of Ravensworth.

Marrick Park, the property of Colonel Morley, is pleasantly situated on the north bank of the Swale, about one mile S.E. of the village. It is a modern mansion of stone, built on the site of the house of the ancient Lords of Marrick, styled, in old writings, Bulmer Castle. It is now occupied by a farmer, as is also Marrick Lodge, another genteel residence. Walker House, in the village, the residence of Mrs. Jane Blenkiron, was formerly the property of the Walker family. The door head exhibits some neat carving.

Hurst is a scattered village about half-a-mile in length, and distant four miles N. of Marrick. It contains a small Wesleyan chapel and a Board school. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in lead mining and smelting. The works are the property of the lord of the manor, from whom they are leased by the Yorkshire Lead Mining Co., Limited. The mines are worked by two shafts 50 fathoms deep, but are not so productive now as formerly. The present output is about 100 tons of ore per month. Lead was wrought here at a very early period. In the British Museum is a large pig of lead, bearing the name of the Roman emperor Hadrian, which was found here; and, about ten years ago, a wooden spade, belonging to the same period, was discovered in one of the old workings. This is now in the museum at Richmond.

On the moor, about a mile from Hurst, is Roan (Ronan?) Well, a spring once held in repute for its medicinal properties. It was much frequented in the summer season by the people of the district, and especially on Trinity Sunday, when they assembled in crowds to drink of the water, and then held high gala the rest of the day. A feast is still held annually on that day by the Wesleyans, but it is of a religious character.

The parish also includes the hamlets of Shaw, Oxque, Owlands, and Ellers.

Post Office, Marrick; Miss M. Langstaff, postmistress. Letters via Richmond daily, per foot messenger, from Marske, at 10-25 a.m. There is a despatch every morning at 7-20. Letters for Hurst arrive by foot post via Reeth, on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays; and the Wall Letter Box at the Board School is cleared on the same days at 12-0 noon.

MEMBERS OF THE MARRICK UNITED DISTRICT SCHOOL BOARD.—T. Bainbridge, chairman; W. Hodgson, vice-chairman; T. Dinsdale, C. Davison, and J. Hillary. Clerk to the Board, Francis J. Greathead, solicitor, Reeth. Meetings are held once a month, alternately, at Marrick and at Hurst.

MARSKE PARISH.

Wapentake and Petty Sessional Division of West Gilling—Electoral Division of Gilling—Poor Law Union and County Court District of Richmond—Rural Deanery of Richmond West—Archdeaconry of Richmond—Diocese of Ripon.

This parish lies on the north bank of the Swale, and presents, in its limited compass of 6,759 acres, some of the most beautiful scenery which even Swaledale can show. The view which everywhere meets the eye is of a varied and picturesque character, embracing wild moorland hills and richly-wooded knolls, with valleys between, clad in the most luxuriant verdure. "Nature," says the Rev. James Raine, in the "Archæologia Æliana," "is here most lavish of her beauties; the inequalities of the ground give her constant opportunities of displaying them, and at every turn you have something to attract the fancy and please the eye." The parish is purely agricultural, and is subject to very little change. The population, in 1801, was 239; in 1851, 244; and, in 1881, 268. The extent of land under assessment is 6,375 acres, which is valued for rateable purposes at £3,816.

The estate of Marske is not mentioned in Domesday Book, unless it be the place named Marige, a manor held at the time of the Survey by Gospatric, but their identity is very doubtful. The district in which it is situated was part of the domain which had belonged to the Saxon Earl Edwin, and which was given by the Conqueror to his nephew Alan, earl of Brittany, whom he created earl of Kichmond. It is not certain when Marske was first granted away as a separate manor, but it is mentioned in a charter of Conan, earl of Richmond, which cannot be later than 1171. He therein grants to Harsculph Cleseby, constable of his castle of Richmond, common for all his lands in the manor of Merske. Some time after this it was granted by one of the early lords to the Roalds, who were, it is supposed, descended from the above Harsculph Cleseby, to be held by knight's service. Subsequently, the manor was held by a family which took its name from the place. Peter de Mersc occurs in a charter of the time of King John, as having some interest in the parish. When Kirkby's Inquest was taken, in 1286, Robert de Marske held here six carucates of land of his kinsman Roald, of Richmond. This Robert, in 1340, sold the estate to his nephew, another Harsculph de Cleseby, who was then, or had been, Receiver of Richmondshire. and subsequently was constable of the castle of Conisburgh. After several descents, the elder line of the Clesebys ended in an heiress, Elizabeth, who carried the estate in marriage to William Conyers, Esq., one of the younger sons of Christopher Conyers, of Hornby, and the progenitor of Conyers, of Marske. William Conyers, his great-grandson, left at his death, in 1558-9, an only daughter and heiress, Joan, who, the following year, married Arthur Phillip, second son of James Phillip, of Brignall. The Phillips appear to have been very unpopular in the district. The father was steward to Lord Scrope, and had had recourse to the most unscrupulous and unfair means to enrich himself, "stripping and plundering the estates over which he was agent, ousting tenants from their leases and forcing loans which he never intended to repay." The estate was burdened with encumbrances when it came into the possession of Arthur Phillip, and, being unable to diminish the debts, he sold the demesne of Marske, in 1596, to Matthew Hutton, Archbishop of York, for his son, Timothy Hutton, Esq., who was knighted in 1605, and from whom John Timothy D'Arcy Hutton, Esq., the present owner, is descended.

Dr. Matthew Hutton, whom we may regard as the founder of the family, was a native of Priest Hutton, a small village in the parish of Warton, in North Lancashire, where he was born of humble but respectable parents in 1525. He entered Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1546, and pursued his studies with such distinguished success, that, in 1557, he was made a Fellow of his College. Several valuable preferments followed, and, in 1589, he was promoted to the wealthy see of Durham, and five years later he was advanced to the Archiepiscopal chair of York. He died in January 1605-6, and lies buried under a handsome monument in York Minster.

Several members of this family have distinguished themselves at home or abroad; but space permits us only to mention one—also named Matthew Hutton, who was successively Bishop of Bangor, Archbishop of York, and Canterbury.

The Hall, at present the residence of Richard Forster Matthews, Esq., occupies a charming situation on the southern bank of a small rivulet, in the midst of an amphitheatre of hills, which shelter it from the cold north winds. It is a plain, commodious, stone mansion, rebuilt by one of the Huttons, about 140 years ago. On the summit of a hill, within the grounds surrounded by trees, is an obelisk of freestone 60 feet high, erected over the remains of Matthew Hutton, Esq., formerly a captain in the army, who died at Macclesfield in 1814. He desired his executors to bury him in this spot, where he had so often sat, enchanted with the beauties of the scenery around.

The village consists of the hall, church, and about a score of cottages, scattered along the banks of a small stream, which, about a quarter of a mile below, empties itself into the Swale. The Church (St. Edmund) is a small ancient structure, comprising a nave, north aisle, south porch, and chancel. At the west end is a little bell cote, containing two ancient bells. The original edifice was probably erected soon after the Conquest; this was rebuilt during the Early English period of architecture (1189-1272); but, from the traces of Norman masonry still visible, it appears that some portions of the Norman edifice were incorporated in the Early English building. The font bears the date 1663, with the initials T_M^{H} , probably those of Timothy Hutton, a merchant of Leeds, who married Margaret, daughter of Sir John Bennet. The communion plate—a small silver salver—bears the arms and crest of Mason, and the following inscription:—"Jere. Mason, born in the parish of Marske, July the 20, Anno Dom., 1642." There is also a silver chalice and cover inscribed:—"For Marske Church, 1665. Cost 2l. 1s. 0d."

In 1762, Mr. Horne, the rector, re-roofed the chancel at a cost of £12, and, in 1830, the whole fabric was restored at the expense of the late John Hutton, Esq., when the chancel was rebuilt and all the interior fittings of the church renewed. This gentleman was High Sheriff of Yorkshire in 1825, and died in 1841. A neat marble tablet, surmounted by a bust, has been placed in the chancel to his memory. On this his many virtues are thus set forth: "The generous patron of Societies for Agriculture, Literature, and Science; the liberal landlord and kind encourager of practical improvements; the steady supporter, on every occasion, of political reform; and the hospitable gentleman in the hall of his ancestors, honoured and beloved by all who entered it as guests and as friends." There is very little in the churchyard worth notice. The socket of the ancient cross remains; and among the tombstones is one recording the deaths of William and Joseph Rookby, aged respectively 37 and 33 years, who were drowned in Clapgate beck on the 16th November, 1771. Though they were both in a very humble sphere of life, they were, according to Canon Raine, the lineal descendants, without a break, of the knightly house of Rokeby-immortalised by Sir Walter Scott, and the last of the line. The Registers begin in 1597, but are wanting between 1661 and 1671.

The living is a rectory, the advowson of which passed, with the purchase of the manor, to the Huttons. It is valued in the King's Books at £12 6s. 3½d. In Bishop Gastrell's survey of the diocese of Chester, to which this parish then belonged, the income from glebe, tithes, and fees is set down at £71 5s. The tithes are now commuted for a rent-charge of £390, in addition to which there are 30 acres of glebe. The present rector is the Rev. Thomas Agmondisham Vesey,

Trinity College, Dublin.

The Village School was erected by the patron, and is attended by 30 children. It has an endowment of £20 per annum, left by Captain Hutton, and it also receives a yearly grant from Jackson's Charity. It was placed under government inspection in 1880.

CHARITIES.—In 1665, Thomas Hutchinson left £100 for the use of the poor, which was invested in a yearly rent-charge of £5 out of Clints estate; and, in 1695, the Rev. John Jackson bequeathed certain rent-charges for the same purpose. These, pursuant to his will, were sold, and the money invested in land in the parish of Marske, which was afterwards exchanged with one of the Huttons for a plot of land in the borough of Richmond, and in tithes and land at East Harlsey. These lands, &c., were sold with the consent of the Charity Commissioners about five years ago, and the principal invested in Metropolitan Consolidated Stock. The income from this Charity is now about £65 a year, out of which the Trustees may apply any sum, not exceeding £30 in one year, for educational purposes within the parish, in the manner following, viz.:—(a) For the purchase of rewards and prizes for the children, any sum not exceeding £5; (b) in the payment of school fees, any sum not exceeding £10; (c) the residue of the £30 to be applied to the payment of the teacher's salary. The residue of the net yearly income of the Charity, not exceeding £35 in any one year, is to be appropriated to the benefit of deserving persons in the parish.

Clints Hall estate (so called from the Danish Klint, a limestone cliff) contains 342 acres, and was formerly held, under the lords of Marske, by a family which took its name from the place. The estate was sold by Arthur Phillip, in 1590, to John Bradley, a Westmoreland man, at whose death it was divided among his daughters. Subsequently, the greater part came into the possession of Robert Willance, another Westmoreland man who had pushed his way to wealth as a draper in Richmond. With his name is connected the following marvellous story, thus told by Canon Raine:—

"In the year 1606 he was hunting near his own estate, on the high ground between Clints and Richmond, on the northern bank of the Swale. The hunting party were surprised by a fog, and Willance was mounted upon a young and tractious norse. To his norror it ran away with him, and made right for the precipitous rock called Whiteliffe Scar, which looks down upon the Swale. The horse, no doubt, as it neared the verge would become conscious of its peril; but, as is very frequently the case, the danger that paralyses the rider only makes the steed more fearless. As soon as it left the level platform above, three bounds, each covering twenty-four feet, brought it to the verge of the cliff, down which it sprang. About 100 feet from the top of the scar there is a projecting mass of rock and earth, upon which the horse alighted, only to throw itself upon the ground below, some hundred feet farther down. It was killed by the fall, and Willance's leg was broken. With wonderful presence of mind, he disentangled himself from his dead horse, and, drawing a clasp knife, he slit open the belly of the animal, and laid within it his fractured leg, to protect it from the cold till help arrived. This precaution, in all probability, saved his life. His leg, however, was amputated, and he would hunt no more. As a memorial of his wonderful escape, he marked with an upright stone each of the three bounds which his steed took before it sprang over the cliff. On two of them he put the following inscription: '1606. Glory to our merciful God, who miraculously preserved me from the danger so great.' And he had indeed great cause to be thankful, for no one can look up at the grey cliff over which he was carried without a shuddering feeling of astonishment that any one could survive so fearful a fall."

Brian Willance, who inherited his uncle Robert's estate, left at his death two or more daughters and co-heirs. Of these, Elizabeth carried Clints and other property in Richmond, to her husband, John Bathurst, M.D., in 1636. It remained in the possession of this family about a century, when Charles Bathurst, Esq., dying without issue, the estate became, by the demise of his widow, the property of his three sisters. One of these, Jane, married William Turner, Esq., of Kirkleatham, and their son, Sir Charles Turner, Bart., bought up the shares of his two aunts, and thus became sole owner. In 1767, he sold Clints for £7,000 to Viscount Downe, who disposed of it the following year for the like sum to Miles Stapleton, Esq. The next owner was Thomas Errington, Esq., who bought it in 1800 for £8,000, and in 1842, it was sold by his son to Timothy Hutton, Esq., for £12,250. The old hall was pulled down by Mr. Hutton, and other buildings now occupy the site.

Skelton is a hamlet and estate adjoining Clints, from which it is divided by the Marske beck. It is a distinct manor, and at a very early period was held by the Halnabys, from whom it passed by marriage to a family named Place. In the 17th century it was purchased by William Bower, a successful merchant at Bridlington Quay, and his descendant, John Bower, in 1782, sold the estate to Miles Stapleton, Esq., for £10,250. It was purchased along with Clints by Thomas Errington in 1800, and in 1842 was sold to Timothy Hutton, Esq., for the sum of £17,250.

Feldom is a small hamlet, consisting of a few scattered farms, situated on the moor, about $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles N. of Clints. It belonged to the monks of Jervaulx until the dissolution of monasteries. It is now the property of J. T. D'Arcy Hutton, Esq.

West Applegarth, another estate in this parish, is a portion of the manor of Ravensworth, and was for several centuries in the possession of the Fitzhughs, from whom it passed by marriage to William Parr, Marquis of Northampton. His lordship died in 1571, and leaving no lawful issue, the estate escheated to the Crown. It subsequently passed through the families of Robinson, Wharton, and Byerley, and in 1814 was purchased by the late John Hutton, Esq.

The decline of Arkengarthdale after the Eighteenth Century.

Arkle Town was thought to be the first settlement in the dale. It boasted a church and cemetery, a shop and petrol station. To day they have all gone. The cottages were miners and small holders. Today they are mostly holiday cottages and a work house. Next we move to Langthwaite a village looked upon as quiet setting although still a picture. To look at they would be two Inns, now only one, "The Red Lion". The "Black Bull" is now closed - the site is still there as living accommodation.

Now we move on to Booze. Booze was a wealthy hamlet very prosperous in the lead industry and at one time 20 children went to go to school. There were no Inns but a Methodist Chapel which has long gone. One, old miner used to say what he had one to many "I can plant Scotty Hill with gold sovereigns cattle on a thousand hills all belong to William."

Next we move to Eskeleth and CB Yard. CB was noted for its smelting mill and octangular building which have long gone. Only the foundations can be seen. Eskeleth used to have a Hall and Chapel. Both have gone although Scarr House stands in all its glory. There was a shop and a joiners shop at CB Yard, now both have gone.

We now move on to Whaw a lovely site to attract the visitor. It used to have a shop, a Reading Room, a Beer House and a Chapel, they no longer exist although you might get Bed and Breakfast and refreshments higher up the dale you get a wild element of moorland and scattered farms, a site you can't miss when the heather is in full bloom.

Next you come to Tan Hill. The highest Inn in the British Isles although it has been modernised the old Inn still stands, it has many stories to tell. If you want to get married go to Tan Hill and the knot will be tied.

FW Hutchinson

Where, What, Why?

Where are your glasses this time?
What do you think about stews?
When you think you've done something

You'll hear a lot worse on the news.

Why do buttons fly from your clothes?
Why is the sea so blue?
When your brother breaks a plate
Why does mother blame it on you?

Why do we feel sea sick?
What do we say we fall?
Why does the car always break down
When you're visiting Hadrian's Wall?
